

Meet Jay Wilson, Energy Specialist

Hello!

I'm Jay Wilson, your Energy Manager.

I am originally from Cumberland County, KY. I served nine years in the Army, serving in both Europe and South Korea. After my military service, I entered law enforcement. I retired in August 2003 from the Bowling Green Police Department. During my time with BGPD, I was fortunate enough to work as a School Resource Officer at Greenwood High School and Drakes Creek Middle School. I enjoyed the school environment and the students to such a degree that it encouraged me to further my education. I completed my Master's degree in Exceptional Education at WKU in 2009.

In my role as Energy Manager, I look forward to working with everyone to help Warren County Public Schools keep utility costs down so we will be able to put those needed dollars into our classrooms. Working together we can keep our utility bills down and quality of education up.

Thank you for your support.
